

Dear Friend,

One of the biggest frustrations we as writers face is breaking into print for the first time. Sure, everyone who's read our manuscript loved it! We thought we wrote a great piece...so why can't we get a single acceptance letter?

Can you feel the shadow of self doubt lurking just beyond the next page?

I sure can.

But here comes the light!

My friends over at Long Ridge Writers Group have put together a new series of classes, 'Breaking Into Print'. And they want you in their newest class!

Imagine learning and understanding what it takes to write an irresistible query letter. One that captures the intern's eye and gets your manuscript in front of the editor.

Intern, you say? Yes - intern! That's one of the valuable lessons I've already learned working with LRWG. Even with the advent of e-books and readers, many editors are so busy they have interns sifting through the thousands of queries they receive - just to find the scarce few that may be of interest.

LRWG can help you graduate to the editors desk.

This 8-week intensive course covers so much more than query letters! How about discovering how great of an article writer you really are? or finally being able to refine your research techniques so you can spend more time writing and less time wandering around the internet (or even the library!).

I can honestly tell you, the individual attention I receive from my instructor has made a huge difference in my confidence. The personal letters I receive monthly reviewing my work, giving me tips and encouragement, and challenging me to pursue assignments I hadn't even dreamed of - well, you need to experience this for yourself to fully understand the power it's had on my writing.

If you are ready to move forward with you writing like I was, than take a moment to fill out the enclosed card and send it back to LRWG. They'll send you more information right away! Or, if you already know this is for you, mark that on the card - or sign up at www.longridgewritersgroup.com. They've reserved a spot just for you - but it won't be there forever!

Please respond by 7/15/2013. There are many aspiring and talented writers out there who are in the same bind as you. LRWG wants to reach as many as possible, but you were on our list first!

Take this opportunity to realize your dreams. I did. And everyday opens a fresh page to be written in this exciting new chapter of my life.

Looking forward to hearing from you,

SIGNATURE